Guidelines for the internship report

The internship portfolio is the culmination of your internship experience. It is more than an account of your time in an organization. It is a descriptive and analytical document in which you specifically connect the knowledge and skills you have acquired during your MA degree to your experience in the workplace. The report is a reflection of your internship and its relationship to your studies: namely, how has the theoretical knowledge you acquired in your courses prepared you for this professional experience? Based on what you learned, did any aspects of your internship surprise you, and if so which ones? Finally, how has this professional experience impacted your understanding of the subjects you studied?

The report is to be written on A4 paper, using Times New Roman font size 12, with a line spacing of 1.5. Footnotes and bibliography should follow the format required for research in your field.

The various sections of the internship portfolio are outlined below.

1. Cover Sheet: See template below.
2. Table of Contents: Indicate the major sections of the report (sub headers are optional).
3. Project Summary: Provide a short summary which outlines the subject of the attached report and the contents of the analyses. It should be written in a style that is accessible to an informed non-academic audience. This section should be two pages in length.
4. Organizational Overview: This should include the name of the company or organization, a detailed description of its activities, and the function of the particular department in which you are working. In addition, you should comment on your role as an intern. State the number of hours worked per week, the number of credits to be earned, where and when you were working, and the sorts of practical skills and tools used. How does an intern fit in? This section should be two pages in length.
5. Organizational Analysis/Brand Audit: What are the company's main outputs? What seem to be its strengths and weaknesses? Where might it expand – and where might it be falling behind the competition? When analysing the organization in which you worked, you should provide a critical reading of the corporate literature, paying particular attention to their communication plans (internal and external.) This section should be ten pages in length.
6. Relationship of Internship to Course Material: In this section, relate your experience in the workplace to the material covered during your Global Communications studies. You are asked to contextualize your internship experience not only in relation to the practical skills you have learned, but also in relation to theories regarding the role that communication plays in society. How did the course material you covered relate to your work? How might one theorize or conceptualize the kind of work you were asked to carry out? Consider how your MA course material might help you analyze your position in the workplace. Discuss the material's relevance to your work experience. You are expected to make specific connections with and references to material covered in your core courses. This section should be ten pages in length.

7. Conclusion: Here, please detail what you learned from the internship, and provide an overview of the company from your perspective as an MA student soon to be seeking employment. How has your experience in this company had an impact on how you see yourself, any aspiration you may have to work in this industry, and the direction for your future career? This section should be two to four pages in length.

Appendices

- Informational interviews: This section involves a critical account detailing an interview of two or more key employees in the company; if possible a person from senior management and a co-worker. You may also interview your immediate supervisor. (If possible, schedule these interviews as you are being hired.) Please see suggested questions in this package. The aim is to get a feel for the career paths of individuals working in the company. How did your interviewees develop their chosen careers? What advice do they have for you? As a conclusion to these interviews, what did you learn? Do you see these individuals as mentors? This section should be six pages in length.
- Weekly journal: In a sense you are doing some ethnography here, a piece of qualitative research for yourself that you are unlikely to have the time or opportunity to do at other moments during your working life. What are your expectations as you begin? What are you learning? How does your company fit into the field at large, in terms of its communicative strategy and goals, operations and products? Focus on process and, eventually, outcomes. Question your colleagues to gain more insight. Write reflective notes on your experience. This section should be ten pages in length.
- Supplementary material: This section is not compulsory. Please attach any materials specifically related to your experience – brochures and newsletters you helped produce, printouts of web pages in which you had input, photographs, etc. These extra materials are considered as separate from the 50/60 pages required for the report itself.
- Mid-point note: This was submitted to your faculty advisor five weeks into your internship. This section should be between three to five pages.

Confidentiality

When preparing your report, please be aware of any confidentiality or non-disclosure agreements you may have signed with your organization. Employers may ask interns to sign confidentiality statements, which may have a bearing on the information you disclose in your internship report and elsewhere. If this is the case, individuals and client corporations may be described rather than named, and projects may be recounted in general terms rather than specific details.

Students with this type of agreement are encouraged to discuss any questions that may arise with the Internship Office and/or their faculty advisor to make sure they fully understand the terms and conditions of the agreement.

Plagiarism

The report and all related documents may be inspired in part by the organization's corporate literature, but the bulk of the project must be the student's own. Students who draw heavily from other sources without proper citation will be subject to university disciplinary action.

Library Access

In addition, students enrolled in MA-level internships benefit from remote access to AUP library databases, but these databases are intended for non-profit educational use and are for the student's personal research only – NOT for research requested by the employer as part of the student's internship duties. Please contact the AUP Library for further clarification: library@aup.edu.

Guidelines for the informational interview

MAGC students pursuing an internship must submit a critical account detailing an interview with two or more key employees, if possible a person from senior management and a co-worker or your immediate supervisor. This account should focus on the career paths of individuals working within the organization. This provides an opportunity for you to consolidate information useful in the formulation of your career plans. This section of the report should be approximately six pages long.

2. Prepare the interview by making a list of questions (see below). Please avoid personal questions.
3. Be on time for the interview. Ask for permission to take notes or record the interview should you wish to do so. If discussing confidential information, make sure that the contact understands the written summary will be read exclusively by members of the AUP community.

Grading

The internship portfolio is a serious piece of academic work. The importance of the internship does not necessarily correlate to your specific tasks and responsibilities, but rather what you learn about the organization and how you transform what you learn into a thoughtful, reflective piece of research.

A – Excellent. The portfolio demonstrates a comprehensive and solid understanding of the relationship between communication theory and how it applies to the organization’s industry. The work presents thoughtful interpretations, well-focused and original insights, and well-reasoned commentary and analysis. The work includes skilful use of resource materials, anecdotes or examples, and clear writing, and contains no grammatical or typographical errors.

B – Good. The portfolio demonstrates a complete and accurate understanding of the relationship between communication theory and how it is applied in the organization’s industry. The work presents a reasonable degree of insight and broad levels of analysis. The work reflects competence, but remains at a general or predictable level of understanding. Use of resource materials and examples is appropriate, and writing is clear.

C – Adequate/Fair. The portfolio demonstrates some understanding but remains superficial, incomplete, or expresses some significant errors or weaknesses. Communication theory may be used inadequately or inappropriately and arguments lack concrete, specific examples. Writing may appear vague, hard to follow, or loaded with typographical or other technical errors.

D – Unsatisfactory. This portfolio demonstrates a serious lack or error in understanding, and fails to express the most rudimentary aspects of communications theory. Sources may be used entirely inappropriately or not at all, and writing is seriously deficient.

F – Failed. Work not submitted by the deadline.
