TEACHING
& LEARNING
CENTER TLC

Dear Colleague,

This TLC News will be short and sweet (to add to the sweetness of this end of semester). And it comes in a new look!

We wish to inform you of two events planned for January 2020:

Monday, January 20 at 10am, we invite you to a TLC breakfast (with coffee and pastries).

Wednesday, January 29, 4-6:30pm, we invite you to join us for a TLC-Mellon workshop by Michael Bamberg, whose research area is discourse and identity:

Liberal education and reflective practices

With my presentation I will redress the role of 'reflection' for teaching and learning in Higher Education. More specifically, I will work through a number of reflective practices that are said to serve deep and life-long learning, drawing on a number of pedagogic experiments - such as working with portfolios, peer-learning assistants, and attempts to empower student learning through self-grading.

A bio blurb for Michael can be found here:

We also have some new ideas for the TLC in 2020 – we'll keep you posted!

Best wishes for finals week,

Your TLC
