Priority for Participation

Students registered in corresponding course(s) of a study trip are given priority for participation on study trips. In the event of enrollment exceeding the number of spots prebooked, the Cultural Program Office team does their best to add extra spots to the trip. Please note, however, that sometimes this is not possible due to outside restraints (flights, hotels, etc.). In this case, students registered in the corresponding course(s) will be given priority and those who are dropped from the trip are not responsible for the cost of the trip. In the event of there not being enough spots for everyone from the course(s), the date and time of registration will be taken into consideration.

Ghana has been listed among the best countries to live in Africa. The crime rate is lower than it is in Ghana. It has a rich history, in both culture and commerce. Many African Americans including Stevie Wonder have made Ghana their home and many more are following suit. We'll begin the study tour with an introduction to the history of Ghana, especially in the contemporary period of colonization and national independence. We will visit the famous European fortresses and the former slave entrepôt as well as a typical country village and a craft market. Many agree that Africa is rich in both natural and human resources. The challenge it faces is putting in place effective development strategies to capitalize on these resources and manage them effectively. We will investigate these strategies with visits to both public and private business organizations. In the middle of the energy transition, students will delve into energy generation from renewable and non-renewable primary sources in France. In Brittany, students will explore the operations of La Rance plant, the second biggest tidal generator of the world, to understand how water could be a feasible solution for clean energy. Wait!!!! Is it totally really clean? Does the local population agree? In Normandy, a visit to a nuclear and a radioactive waste plants, will allow the discussion on zero-emission energy that responds to the massive demand of the general population. Which will be choose? why? and when? We shall witness how energy generation affect the ecological and social conditions of the surroundings.
